

Romans built special bridges for water to bring it to people in the city. They are like pipes but above ground.

PV Pure creates solar-powered water purification equipment to help give everyone clean water.

Cities start using light (ultra violet light) to clean their water.

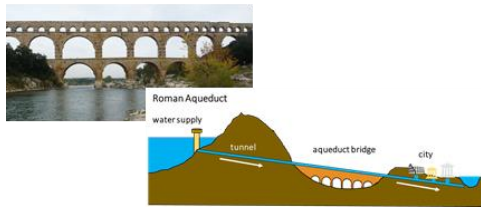

Scientists learn new ways to clean water, using light and chemicals.

People in Greece, India, and Egypt start to clean their water.

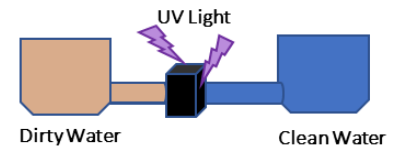

Romans build aqueducts to bring drinking water to people throughout the city.

PV Pure starts building modular solar-powered water purification plants to help bring clean water to people everywhere.

An increasing number of cities and countries start using ultraviolet light to purify their drinking water.

After many people die from contaminated water (cholera) Jon Snow discovers water can be purified using some chemicals (chlorine).

People in Greece, India, and Egypt start developing different ways to purify water. The main reason is to make it taste better.

Put the historical events in the order you think they belong and justify your order.
